

Paralympic Games ticket prices

The full breakdown of ticket prices for the London 2012 Paralympic Games is shown below. Full price tickets start at £10 with special prices available in every session (except Ceremonies). Special price tickets are just £5 for young people aged 16 and under (at 29 August 2012) and seniors aged 60 and over (at 29 August 2012). Look out for the  symbol.

Ticket types

You can watch the Paralympic Games with either a ticket or a day pass.

Ticket – Guaranteed entry to a specific session (for example, Athletics evening session). This will either be general admission or for a reserved seat.

In the sports where 'Day pass included' is indicated in the grid below, you can choose to pay a higher price for a ticket to a specific session which will also include a day pass.

Day pass – Entry to either the Olympic Park or ExCeL on a specific day to see a variety of sports. An Olympic Park day pass allows you to see any sport in the Park, other than Athletics, Cycling or Swimming and some finals. An ExCeL day pass gives you access to all sports in ExCeL, other than Volleyball (Sitting) finals. Day passes allow you general admission to sports on a first come, first served basis.

Accessibility

We want London 2012 to be everyone's Games so we have designed a wide range of ticket products and seating options for disabled people. For further information please read Ticket information for disabled people
